- Self-confidence ;
- Autonomy ;
- Adaptability to changes and complex or unexpected situations;
- Awareness of different lifestyles and traditions;
- Tolerance of differences.

Some advices from alumni

You need to draw up your study contract carefully and make an informed choice of courses. Course timetables vary radically from one country to another.

For most former students, the number of course hours is higher than in their home country. You need to prepare well for your exam session.

According to our alumni, there are more exams in Belgium than in their home country. If you want to go to Belgium, take the necessary steps as soon as possible.

There are a lot of Erasmus students and unfortunately places are limited.
